MISSION AND HISTORY

The New England School for Financial Studies provides banking professionals with the tools needed to manage effectively in today's changing financial climate. An intensive two-year program of studies broadens the skills of supervisory personnel and trains them to make decisions that promote the profitability of the bank as a whole. As of last year, the school has graduated over 3,534 bankers.

Two one-week resident sessions provide students with 135 hours of classroom instruction conducted by distinguished faculty members chosen for their expertise in both the academic and business worlds. Classes combine lectures with case studies to actively involve participants in the process of research, analysis and creative planning.

Between sessions, students complete five assigned independent study projects that focus on their bank and build on the first week's instruction to prepare them for more advanced training during the second year resident session. The course culminates in a comprehensive computerized simulation which challenges students to assume senior management responsibilities.

Students will be evaluated on their knowledge of BankExec, strategic planning exercises and presentations. Each segment will be appropriately-weighted and scored as part of the final grade. By graduation, students are better prepared to contribute to their bank's overall operation and participate in profitable decision making.

Textbooks have been replaced with tablets. Each student will be required to have a tablet. Switching to a digital platform will allow students to stay up-to-date and let students engage with content in interactive ways, find information in an instant and access an entire library wherever they go.

CRITERIA FOR ACCEPTANCE & ADMISSION

To be eligible, applicants should hold supervisory positions in a financial institution and demonstrate the ability to take on greater responsibility within their organization. The New England School for Financial Studies is for staff officers, branch managers, department heads, loan officers, and other key personnel.

Mail the application by April 7, 2017, along with a letter of recommendation from the bank's endorsing officer (CEO or applicant's supervisor). For further information, please contact Meghan McCarthy at 617-502-3807; mmccarthy@massbankers.org. Students will be notified of acceptance in late April.

TUITION*

Freshman Year:

$1,310 for member banks, $2,010 for nonmembers, per year, (including tablet).

$895 (without tablet).

Senior Year:

$895 for member banks, $1,595 for nonmembers.

Tuition includes the cost of all classroom instruction, materials and special activities. Registration fees do not include accommodations.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Participants are encouraged to reside at the Babson Executive Conference Center during the week-long sessions in order to experience the full benefits of the School. Both day and evening classes are scheduled, and all of Babson's academic and recreational facilities are made available to the students. Registration fees are separate.

Accommodation fees are: (includes all meals and breaks)

$1,512 per person, double occupancy ♦ $2,107 single occupancy; and

$1,025 for day students.

Student registration for the Class of 2018 will be held at the Babson Executive Conference Center on the campus of Babson College, Wellesley, MA, on Sunday, May 21, 2017, between 2:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m.
