The “Great Migration” Back to Work

As we all start returning back to the workplace in the coming weeks/months, you may realize that there is a new norm. Many employers are creating guidelines and protocols for their employees when they return to the office. Below are 5 Tips for a smooth transition back to the workplace in a post COVID-19 world.

5 Tips

• Communication is key, throughout your entire business. Make sure all employees know of any new protocols or guidelines. Ensure the information is clear and concise. Also communicate with your customers to let them know what you’re doing to ensure their safety as well.

• Utilize all forms of electronic communication to reduce interacting with people in person. This includes the phone, texting, emails and programs such as Microsoft Teams. If you’ve been working from home and successfully communicating with your co-workers, you can continue that in the office!

• If you’re returning from remote work and you’re in a situation where you need to setup your laptop or desktop, make sure to do it correctly! If you are unsure of how to properly set it up, reach out to your IT department or your partnered Managed Services Provider.

• Do your best to continue social distancing! This may seem obvious, but it can easily be overlooked when returning to the office.

• Dedicate some time to do proper cleaning and disinfecting throughout the day. Below you will find an Automated Business Solutions cleaning guide to ensure you properly clean office equipment without the worry of damage.
